CEASING AT DAWN

ITALIAN OFFENSIVE
SAID TO BE BROKEN

HUNDREDS OF BODIES STREW THE FIELD
Douglas Trembles While the Vigorous Cannonading is in Progress

(By Associated Press.)
DOUGLAS, Nov. 2.—An all night battle at Agua Prieta lulled at daybreak, the Villa forces withdrawing. It is officially reported that 45 Carranzistas were killed and 75 wounded. It is unofficially said that 250 were killed. The dead and wounded of the Villistas strewn the fields. At 3 o'clock this morning Villa hurled his contingent of Yaquis against the town but they were repulsed. The heavy cannonading made Douglas tremble. Women became hysterical. Carranza's mines killed 300 of the Yaquis. Houses were damaged in Agua Prieta. There is one 20-foot gap in the barbed wire entanglements. Officers of the attackers said Villa had retired to secure water. The men are famished. Twenty-three hundred refugees are encamped at Pirlerville, a suburb of Douglas. Eight persons were wounded during the battle, on the American side of the line, as follows: Louis Taylor, spine; Corporal E. M. Jones, both thighs; Private O. Y. Whiddon, neck; Mail Carrier H. K. Jones, shoulder; Mexican boy, stomach; Mexican woman, lost finger; Harry Jones, a private, stomach, probably fatally; Private James Tank, legs. It is reported that 35 women and children were killed in Agua Prieta, and about the same number wounded. General Funston has arrived. At noon the Villa machine guns were sweeping the town from the east. Sergeant Walter Nays and Private Mitchell were later wounded in an American trench, probably by the same bullet, which then hit Sergeant Henry Wardell on the pocket, breaking a pipe. He later found the bullet in his pocket. General Calles was warned. The fighting is now desultory.
